Admission of Alabama.

Senator Sherman has introduced a bill to admit the State of Alabama into the Union and to enable her Senators and representatives to take their seats in Congress. We trust that the bill will be passed without hesitation or delay. The true way to admit a State rests in the discretion of Congress. The power to admit Alabama rests upon the same principle as the power to admit Colorado, and the right of Congress to give seats to the Senators and Representatives is the same in both cases. The new constitution of Alabama has been framed in accordance with the Reconstruction law. It is republican in form. It confers no monopoly of political rights and privileges on any class, but affords all citizens an equal participation in the government. Why then should it not be admitted into the Union?

The objection will be raised that the new constitution was not ratified by a majority of the registered voters. The answer is that Congress never declared that the State should not be admitted unless the rebels took the trouble to go to the polls. It declared that "if ratified by the votes of a majority of the registered electors it should be admitted." If the registered voters voting upon the question of such ratification," then the state should be admitted. But if nowhere declared that it should not be admitted otherwise, nor would such a declaration, if made, be irrepealable. The power to admit is certainly as great as the power to exclude. If we can exclude, we certainly had power to pass the first Reconstruction act, then the power to admit also is conceded.

But whether the only practical question for Congress to consider is this. Will it be policy to admit the Alabamians? The reasons pro and con are familiar to all. The opposed features? What rights have the Alabamians violated? Nothing. Feelings have been hurt and lives by treason, and the only penalty exacted of them has been that they should not be allowed to send loyal men to an equal share in the elective franchise. If they are dissatisfied let them remember that they are again amenable, and see where it will lead. Is Andrew Johnson going to oppose the admission? The bonds individual has upon the Senators in Congress, with very little effect so far, and we do not see how his opposition would be more effective in this case. Is the Democracy going to oppose it? They have been clamoring for the admission of those States for more than two years, and if they change front now the inference is that they prefer Alabama out still by very slim.

Then there is nobody to oppose it but the resistance of the South could bring. The admission once effected will be an accomplished fact of the utmost solidity and the gates of hell cannot prevail against it. If Congress decides to secure what it has already done and insure what remains to be done, let it admit Alabama at once, and bid defiance to all rebels and all enemies of equal suffrage North and South.

Repudiation.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

SIR: I am asked by the Committee of Arrangements for the Ball to be given by the Democracy of this city on the 22d inst. to request you to publish the following letter from Gen. Sheridan, and to say that you are authorized to do so by the Committee.

Very respectfully, yours, &c.,
THOMAS HOYNE.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31, 1868.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 27th inst. is received, and in reply I have to say that I am not in favor of repudiating the debt of the State of Louisiana, or any other debt, and that I am opposed to any man's test to catch the pennies he throws to them, or expose themselves to any buffoning which may give them a cheap notoriety that promises to provide them means to get drunk. I am opposed to the fact of their lives, that their supply of victims never gives out. Too ignorant to be great knaves, they are too cunning to be great fools. They will fall into no pitfall dug for any man's feet

Goodwin, Professor Sweet of the Second Baptist Church, subject "The Bible and Shakspeare." The public are invited.

PAWNBROKER'S SALE.—One of the best places to buy a watch, clock or chain, pistols, jewelry, or any article usually to be found among the great variety of goods in a pawnbroker's store, is at Lipman's, corner of Madison and Clark streets, who is closing out his stock of unredeemed pledges. Sale continues at 9 o'clock this morning.

SELLING LIQUOR WITHOUT A LICENSE.—Two saloon-keepers, of Chatsworth, Ill., John A. Mackie and Michael Prendergast, were fined one day before United States Commissioner Hoxie, charged with selling liquor without a license. The former was fined $50 and costs, and the other was fined half that sum and costs, the latter being the United States District Court.

Lindley, a musician at Pure Kerosene saloon, had his banjo stolen Monday, and found it in Wood's hands. Another person had lost a tamourette, and he identified it. The case was continued until to-day.

AN INSANE WOMAN.—A Cortland paper of Monday contains the following: "Mrs. Lloyd, of Marathon, was committed to the poor-house yesterday, from the Lady Superior of the Graeme Convent, for the reason that she was insane, and had been so for some time. She was accompanied by her husband, who is a brother of Mrs. Bishop Ford, that she came from Port Jan, N. Y., and desires to go to Utica, where she has friends to visit."

AN ASSEMBLAGE ACCEPTED.—The members of a Bible class in the Second Baptist Church, taught by Deacon E. H. Gardner, assembled at the house of their instructor and his wife one evening last week and presented them by memorandum of the class, accompanied by a purse containing $100 in greenbacks, which was presented by the pastor, Rev. E. J. Goodspeed, after which the class spent a very pleasant and pastoral social evening.

AN IMPERIAL TRIBUTE.—Patrick Carroll and Patrick Dolan were arraigned at the police court this morning charged with having in their possession counterfeit coin, which they attempted to pass off on Mr. Hoffman, a saloon-keeper, at the corner of Lake and Wells streets. Officer Hogan arrested them, and when it came into possession there were two dollars in counterfeit coin found on Carroll, and one dollar in counterfeit coin found on Dolan, and one dollar in genuine coin. The latter claimed that he received the genuine dollar from Carroll, and when it came into possession of the latter he received it from a stranger. The case was continued until to-day.

AN INFLAMMATORY CHURCH CRISIS.—It may be the time of the Church of the Messiah, but we know that the choir of the Church of the Messiah, Rev. H. W. Bellows, pastor, is in a terrible row—in a hot by the trustees of the church. The choir has been engaged to sing for the church for a long time, and once before removed a disagreement between the trustees and the choir, back upon promises of future good behavior. The choir has again broken its promises, and the trustees, in their wisdom, have dismissed them, and engaged a fresh choir. Whereupon the old choir has formed a new society in Farwell hall, and the trustees have issued a circular to the members of the old choir, informing them that unless they return to their duty they will be dismissed. The matter is a very pretty one, and we hope to see it settled.

AMUSEMENTS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Mr. Lander repeated her personation of Elizabeth last evening to a good house, and was received with the same favor as on the previous occasion. On Friday evening "Mary Stuart" will be played, and on Saturday evening "Adrienne."

MCVICKER'S THEATRE.—The French Spy" is on the bills again this evening, together with "The Wood Demon" and "Rosedale."

WOOD'S THEATRE.—Wood's was a very attractive place last evening, and was filled with a fine audience. The leading feature of the evening was the farce of "Mr. Jackson in Search of Himself," in which the fortunes of Mr. Jackson and his friends were exhibited in a very amusing manner. Mr. Jackson's search for himself was successful, and that during October or November he will be found in the Bridewell, is the information which those interested can obtain from Mr. Jackson. Lucien Moore, Miss Kate E. Wilde, Dorcas Brown and others rendered the farce very effective, and it was an enterprise. The play was an admirable one for the purpose, and was rendered with a better advantage than in the case of the farce. The specialties were also very good, and Miss Clara Wood, a commendable leader of the orchestra, was the recipient of a bouquet which she took home with her. Mr. Wood's benefit takes place this evening, and the bill is a very attractive one.

An Important Land Suit Decided Against the North-western Railway.

Proceedings in Bankruptcy—Attachment for Contempt—Suit for Slander.

An Aggravated Case of Desertion—A Batch of Divorces—Criminal Business.

The business of the United States District Court yesterday consisted, so far as the despatch of business is concerned, in the trial of the chief, and in case of John D. Wickham to recover from Robert Amy property in Bureau County, of this State. The property is described as the southwest quarter of section 31, township 16, north range 7. The title of plaintiff is claimed to be from John Sickles, grantee of the land, a soldier in the war of 1812 in the Forty-first Infantry. The actual question at issue is whether that John Sickles is the one to whom the patent was issued.

The plaintiff introduced a certified copy of Bart. 1855 to Thomas J. and Mary S. Flinn and William Carey. But the defendants objected.

A DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

Attempted Highway Robbery on Michigan Avenue.

The Highwayman Shoots His Victim and Escapes Bootless.

As attempted highway robbery, scarcely excelled for its daring by any similar crime in the line of recent date in this city, was perpetrated on Michigan avenue, in the vicinity of Van Buren street, last night. The highwayman, who figured in this romance with unusual boldness, finding himself unexpectedly balked in his undertaking, made use of cool lead to carry out his ends, but, fortunately, no very serious results followed the shooting of the victim, with but slight injury.

The affair transpired between 9 and 10 o'clock. Mr. Richard Hall, who has been living almost in the latter locality mentioned, was approached from behind by a man who, without much hesitation, made a demand of money, and, on receiving a refusal, sprang upon him and threw him to the ground. A struggle ensued, in the course of which considerable amount of money, of which fact the assailant was aware, was retained by Mr. Hall, who attempted to get possession of a pistol which the highwayman carried in his pocket, but, in so doing, the pistol was discharged accidentally, the contents of which entered the left groin of Mr. Hall, inflicting a severe but not dangerous wound. Hall, finding himself completely overmatched in the struggle, and seeing no way to escape from the clutches of the other, who was now standing over him, drew a revolver and discharged it at Wagner, the contents of which entered the left side of the head of the latter, inflicting a wound which, it is thought, will prove fatal. The assailant then turned and fled in the direction of the lake shore, and, as he was seen to enter a boat, it is supposed that he made his escape in that manner. Hall was conveyed to the residence of Mr. Wagner, on Michigan avenue, near Van Buren street, and a physician called in to attend to the wounded man. Dr. Hall, who is a brother of the wounded man, arrived on the scene soon after the occurrence, and, from information received, he is of the opinion that the wound will prove fatal. Coroner Wolfe was notified of the affair, and will hold an inquest upon the body of the victim. The highwayman is described as a man about five feet eight inches in height, dressed in a dark suit of clothes, and wearing a dark slouch hat. He is said to be a stranger in this city.

"GAMBLING CONTRACTS."

The Warehouse Bill in Court.

The Law Sustained.

The question of the constitutionality of the Warehouse law passed by the last Legislature, in reference to the clauses declaring certain contracts to be gambling contracts, came up yesterday in the Superior Court, and Judge Drummond decided to abide by the law and leave the further consideration of the matter to the Supreme Court.

The matter arose in this wise: On the 13th day of October last, Bell, Gardner & Co., commission merchants, brought suit against George Schneider, of Peoria, to recover the sum of $4,000, on a contract for the purchase of corn, to the amount of 84,000 bushels. The action was brought to recover the difference between the price at which the corn was purchased in the months of August and September, each one hundred bushels being bought at 84 cents per bushel, to be delivered at different periods of time, and the price at which the corn was sold in October, to the advance in price. Schneider, it is claimed, refused to receive the corn and pay dollars, the difference between the price at which it was purchased and the price at which, at the time of delivery, they could be sold. The defendant pleaded that it was a gambling contract.

The plaintiffs, by their attorneys, Eldridge & Throckmorton, pleaded the clause of the Warehouse law declaring all contracts for the sale of grain for future delivery where there is no ownership of the property at the time, or intention of ownership or delivery, and that, to the sale of the plaintiffs, and that this fact was known to the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs, by their counsel, Mr. Fonce, demurred to the plea, and argued that the law was unconstitutional, and that bringing the question openly before the Court.

On the ends of the plaintiffs' counsel, Mr. Throckmorton argued that the passage of the law A. W. Arrington. It was constitutional, and that the same power to regulate trade is granted to Congress. That there is the same right to prohibit, that there is the same right to regulate, and that the law was a proper exercise of law said, as a meritorious contract.

Judge Drummond said that he would take time examining the law. It is understood that the cause will be taken to the Supreme Court.

THE LAKE TUNNEL.

How it is Constructed—Answer to a Correspondent.

MORRIS, Ill., Feb. 10, 1868.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

Will you in some future number of THE TRIBUNE explain to me why the Lake Tunnel, as now there are different opinions concerning it, some assert that the arch was sunk and the tunnel commenced at the north end, others that it was begun at the shore end. Please state, also, how much water is now in the tunnel, and in what way the water is raised and carried through the city.

SUBSCRIBER.

We had thought that the several features of the Lake Tunnel were sufficiently well known to our readers to render unnecessary the answering of asked such questions as the above. Still, for the benefit of our correspondent, and others, who may be anxious to verify their ideas on the subject, we will say that the tunnel is 7 feet 6 inches in diameter, and about seven feet in length. It is sunk to a depth of about 70 feet below the surface of the water of Lake Michigan, the greatest depth of water in the lake, which is 20 feet, and then over thirty feet of solid earth between the bed of the lake and the tunnel itself at the lowest point.

The excavation was begun at the shore end and was carried out to a distance of about three-quarters of a mile, when the connection was made with the lake and sunk. The excavation at the shore end was commenced on the 17th of April, 1865, and the crib was put in position about the 1st of August following. The tunnel was finished during that interval, regardless of the shore end of the tunnel, which was completed by another party of workmen set to work digging from the shore end. The tunnel is now finished and there are about 6,000 feet from shore.

The water is raised and carried through by our correspondent, if he will consider that the tunnel is 70 feet below the surface of the water, and that the strength position of the pipe being two miles long, the water will rise to the level of the water in the circular. The water runs in at the top of the tunnel, and the pipe is laid in the bottom of the tunnel, at the same level in the turn at the outer end. The water is then carried through the pipe by the water pressure, and then pumped in the top of the high service, from which it descends to supply the city.

GOOD TEMPLARS.—The following officers were installed at the last meeting of Kinore Lodge: C. C. T., C. A. Ralph; V. T., Mrs. G. W. Bunker; Secretary, Miss Ella Ralph; Financial Secretary, with a complaint against a young lady boarding the suppression name of John Brown as a member of the lodge, for the reason that she had a diamond pin, worth about $100. It appeared that the lady had been solicited for the pin by a young man indicating in a sconce, the other day, in the house of Mr. Brown, and that he had left it for her to the latter, and that John pulled Pete's hair and kicked him out. The case was dismissed, Pete's complaint was a very cold one, and the young man appeared to be the victim of a practical joke.

The defence denied this story, and also admitted being nothing more than ground glass in the pin in question, and ran down stairs and was very much surprised.

AN INFLAMMATORY CHURCH CRISIS.—It may be the time of the Church of the Messiah, but we know that the choir of the Church of the Messiah, Rev. H. W. Bellows, pastor, is in a terrible row—in a hot by the trustees of the church. The choir has been engaged to sing for the church for a long time, and once before removed a disagreement between the trustees and the choir, back upon promises of future good behavior. The choir has again broken its promises, and the trustees, in their wisdom, have dismissed them, and engaged a fresh choir. Whereupon the old choir has formed a new society in Farwell hall, and the trustees have issued a circular to the members of the old choir, informing them that unless they return to their duty they will be dismissed. The matter is a very pretty one, and we hope to see it settled.
